From The Staff

First Day of School...

5:00 AM - Cathy awakes to get in the shower, she thinks she hears the water running in the kitchen, possibly an intruder, but it is not. (Guess she thought someone broke in our house to get a drink of water?)

5:20 AM - The crackly helium balloon left over from Savannah's B-Day party drifts down from our bedroom ceiling directly into the ceiling fan. This sounds like sporadic gun fire, I spring to action out of the bed and secure the balloon. Cathy is not quite as fortunate, this "sporadic gun fire" combined with the possible water drinking intruder has left Cathy in a some what crippled manner standing partially dressed and trembling in the bathroom. After about five minutes she creeps out to see if I am still among the living. I ask if she is ok and she manages to squeak out "No". I hop out of bed and give her a hug and tell her all is alright, she shuffles back in the bathroom with a bewildered look and continues her morning ritual.

5:50 AM - I have showered, dressed and I am ready for work. I walk out on the deck to let Pepper (our dog) go down stairs for his morning activities. Upon inspection of the deck there is a foul trail of something that I can not describe and probably should not. I can only tell you that Pepper had eaten something and it did not agree with either end of his body. Thank goodness for water hoses.

6:00 AM - I hear Cathy's hair dryer stop, my sweet terrified little wife is no longer terrified and is summoning me as if she is a supreme court justice. "Oh sweet mercy" I think to myself, the hair dryer died. I am charged with borrowing a hair dryer from the neighbors, I start to argue the point but see the fire in her eyes and the drawn look of determination in her lips. I quickly come to the realization that I should go next door and go quickly. Thank goodness, the neighbors are not home...but now I am faced with the harsh reality that I will be expected to run to Wal-Mart and back in 6 minutes and 17 seconds. I pace slowly in circles and back to our house as a school boy on his first date. I am weighing all options in my head when I hear the hair dryer start again. Thanks and all Glory be to God.

6:15 AM - I check on Zook (our second dog), he is being kept in Mary Ella's old baby pin as he has a broken hip from a car accident. He is not a smart dog, I think he may have brains equivalent to a dirt clod. Never the less he has soiled his pen and I can not stand to deal with anymore poo at the moment. I turn a blind eye and keep moving, time to wake up Savannah and Will.

6:17 AM - Lights are on and the official notice to get up is made. Savannah and Will seem to ignore my request more than usual, not sure why I am surprised. As I walk back in the living room I see Cathy working Zook's "poo pen". I turn to escape her penetrating stair of disgust but she got me....She did not have to saying anything, her look tells it all, I now feel quite sheepish as a whipped puppy...why didn't I clean the pen, I ask myself.

6:20 AM - All kids are now up and moving, the events from this time on become very foggy or fuzzy as Cathy and I are barking out orders, dogs are jumping, kids are running, lunches are packing etc....

6:40 AM - This I do remember, Mary Ella and I are ready to go, I kiss Savannah, Will and Cathy goodbye and remind them that I love them.

John 10:10 reads, "I came that they may have and enjoy life, and have it in abundance, to the full, till it overflows."

I wouldn't trade my abundant life for anything and I encourage you to step back and enjoy your busy, abundant life as it is God sent.
